

Roc Stompa X-Stomp Billet Footpegs

When you are riding your bike the last thing you think of is the condition and type of footpeg you have. But when you find your feet getting knocked off the pegs in ruts, or you are flapping off the back of the bike climbing hills, maybe you should think a bit more about them. The new Pro-Stomp Foot Pegs from the guys at Roc Stompa are solid locking anodised piece of 'bling', designed for both feature and function.

We gave them a once over on my trusty KTM 525 to see how they perform. With some very thorough instructions that are pretty much idiot proof, the installation looked easy. I went into the shed to install them and other than needing plenty of force to get their super dooper springs to compress to insert the split pin, all was easy!

Come Saturday morning I loaded the bike, went to my favourite slippery place with lots of mud and sludge to see how they perform. As I got into the mud I could feel the larger platform they provide from stock pegs and they gripped the bottom of my boots as nothing I can compare with. The screw in pins, that are easily replaceable when they wear, make grip perfect. A nice touch was the oversize peg also has a curved middle so it makes for a more ergonomic feel.

As I got into the tricky ruts to see if they still performed well when full of slippery gunk, my feet held fast to the pegs. I guess they are just what you need in either track racing, in muddy conditions or on the trails with more mud you can handle on your pegs. The larger peg really does help with balance and you can apply more pressure to the outside peg for more confident cornering.

There are two styles of pegs:

- X Stomp series come in a natural aluminium finish.

RRP $239.00

- Pro Stomp series comes in your choice of six anodised colours for those of us who like to customise our bike. RRP $289.00

Both models are made from tough 6262T9 billet aluminium that makes them stronger than standard steel/titanium pegs. All components are fully replaceable so they will most likely outlast the rest of the bike! Serviceable, tough, grippy with a bit of bling are a good combination for any product. So if you are out shopping for pegs, check out Roc Stompa!

Diego (Flying Fossil) Esqueria

Enough bling for you? The Roc Stompa X-Stomps look the goods.

Quality finish shines through.

The removable screws enable you to keep maximum grip.